I live in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho with my wife and two children. When I'm not working I enjoy reading, writing novels, and spending time outdoors with my family.

Over the past 15 years I've worked for and with a number of amazing teams. I've had the privilege of co-founding a software company, contracting with Google as a Creative Director, working at Automattic as a Product Designer, and working with XWP.co to help amazing clients like Beachbody, Heavy.com, PMC, and Thompson Reuters.

The scale of my work has covered areas such as visual design, product design, building a design team, becoming a product owner, illustration, and creative director work.

I focus on bringing clarity to chaos, am eternally curious, and endlessly focused on connection and understanding.

 THOMSON REUTERS

My studio helps companies across design and product. Clients include Google and XWP.co. For Google I supported as a Creative Director, visual designer, and illustrator across projects within the content creator space. For XWP I've led in building a design team, shaped product design, and supported enterprise WordPress clients as a team lead, product owner, and design lead.

Senior visual and product designer focused on supporting lifestyle brands in the health and wellness space. My work involved guiding junior designers, designing software products for the sales team, and leading branding and illustration initiatives for the company.

Co-founded company with a focus on enterprise software for small businesses. Supported with sales, visual design, product design, website design and frontend development.
